with the World Future Society,
Washington D.C.

DDM Media, the Futures Study Centre, and the World Future Society are pleased to announce the Futures publishing event of the decade. The Knowledge Base of Futures Studies is an original series of books which show-cases some of the best current thinking the field has to offer.

Those unfamiliar with the field have wondered about its character: just what is Futures Studies? How can the future be studied before it has happened? Can the future be predicted? What practical applications do Futures Studies have? Who are Futurists and what do they do? Why should we care for future generations? What insights about the early 21st Century are available now?

The Knowledge Base of Futures Studies series answers these and many other questions. Three years in preparation, it is the first truly international and inter-cultural summary of the key insights of this fascinating field. As we approach the new millennium, there is already a profound shift of attention away from the past and towards the emerging future. Futures Studies will contribute to this process. The Knowledge Base of Futures Studies provides a clear and well-defined foundation for many uses. It will be an indispensable aid to students, academics, business people, researchers, policy-makers, planners: indeed anyone seeking a travel guide to the near-term future. When people ask 'What are Futures Studies?' or 'How can Futures Studies help me or my organisation?' they need look no further than this series.

The Knowledge Base of Futures Studies is intended for a wide general and professional audience. It will also be of particular interest to those teaching courses in Futures, and Futures-related fields around the world. This series has a place in every library and in every college, university, business and government department where teaching, learning, research and current 'best practice' approach the frontiers of contemporary knowledge.

Comments by Leading Futurists about the Knowledge Base Series

'This is a most impressive project and (it) will be a tremendous contribution to the field'.
Edward Cornish, President, World Future Society, Washington DC.

'A superb panorama of outstanding futurists and important ideas from around the world'.
Prof. Allen Tough, Department of Adult Education, OISE, University of Toronto.

'The publication of what constitutes the contemporary knowledge base of futures studies is long overdue. It brings together the pieces of the jigsaw that is clearly emerging as a multidisciplinary field of critical interest in education, policy, management, governance and many other professional pursuits'.
Prof. Tony Stevenson, Secretary General of the World Futures Studies Federation, Queensland University of Technology, Australia.

'With the publication of the Knowledge Base of Futures Studies the futures field enters a new stage of intellectual maturity and promise. In these volumes, the past work of futurists from many countries is consolidated and a base is established for continuing work'.
Prof. Wendell Bell, Department of Sociology, Yale University

'Finally, a definitive, up-to-date source on the theories, methods and practices of Futures Studies. This will be a valuable resource for anyone wanting to know what Futures Studies is (and what it is not) and a perfect set of textbooks for those who wish to begin or expand their teaching in this extremely important and vibrant field'.
Prof. Jim Dator, Department of Politics, University of Hawaii

'Indispensible - not only for the professional futurists - but for all those interested in this growing field, whatever their discipline or perspective'.
Hazel Henderson, Independent Futurist, Florida

'A valuable series that takes multiculturalism to the heart of Futures Studies.'
Prof. Zia Sardar, Middlesex University, UK.
